- (e) [redacted] Several T54 Tanks (number and destination unknown) left the WÖRMLITZ Kaserne (BS 8203) and were loaded at AMMENDORF Railway Station.

25X1

- (f) [redacted] The AA troops leaving the WÖRMLITZ Kaserne for MERSEBURG took with them 4 tarpaulin covered vehicles (see sketch below) towed by half-track vehicles which also carried about 8-10 men each.

- (g) The EGA AA troops in HALLE have taken over from the Soviet troops in the WÖRMLITZ Kaserne 16 x 85 mm M 1939 AA guns and 4 x E-Range finders. The EGA will shortly also receive 100 mm. AA guns.

- (h) The HEIDE Kaserne still has as its permanent AA barrack defence 12 x 122 mm. M 1955 guns and 3 Radar fire control installations. The control installations appear to be connected to a junction box about 40 x 40 x 40 cm. standing in the middle of a square 50 x 50 m. of 4 guns. Cables run from the junction box to each gun, and the guns rove simultaneously and identically for line and elevation. Each gun has a detachment of 5 men, one of whom has earphones and a microphone cup mouthpiece, while the other 4 serve the gun.

- (d) [ ] Joint infantry training of EGA and Soviet troops took place on the Airfield alongside the HEIDE Kaserne. The EGA and Soviet companies were not mixed, but were deployed as a combined force. They used MGs, smoke grenades, and R/T. 25X1

Similar training was again observed early in March, each gun having a detachment of 5 men, though change of line and elevation of all four guns seemed to be automatic and simultaneous. See equipment 2(h) above. 25X1

5. CHANGE IN SOVIET DIVISIONAL ORGANISATION AT HALLE

It is believed locally that with the departure of the AA troops from the HEIDE and WÖRMLITZ Barracks for MERSEBURG these troops are now removed from their divisional role and from the command of the GOC 21 Gds Mech Division, HALLE, and are now a part of the overall air defence organisation. They will only have liaison with the Division on a tactical basis in future.
